

Schools are back, but lockdown is not over

Re-opening education has been a national priority. We know missing education due to school closures is detrimental to children's future prospects, but it also impacts on parent's ability to work.

We all need to follow the rules as restrictions ease to give us the best chance of moving forward and back to normality.

Children should not be mixing outside your household, school or childcare bubble. Playdates and out of school meet ups need to wait.

Support us in moving to the next step by following the rules now
